

Snow Geese

Snow geese come in two colors. Some are all white with black wing tips. They have pink legs and a pink bill with black "lips." Others just have a white head and neck. Their bodies are blue-gray.

In the summer, snow geese live in Alaska and Canada. They lay eggs and raise young. In winter, the geese fly south. This is called migration. Some geese go to Colorado. Others fly to Kansas, New Mexico, Texas, and Mexico.

In late spring, the birds fly back to Alaska and Canada. They fly in big groups called flocks! They stop to rest and eat. Snow geese eat only plants.
